Title: You may already be a winner of the lottery

To claim the big prize, send your checking account number and bank routing number to the above address – with $10 to cover shipping. for seeing eye dogs only was first in the summer of 2005. Then came wake up – it's time for your sleeping pill in August 2008. here's your free gift – send $10 for shipping is another book on the three “L”s: language, laughter and lunacy. Missing intelligence is all around and no one is exempt from this behavior, but it results in many laughs. Sit back and smile. Laughter is the best medicine and it's available even if you're a pirate or Joe the Plumber and no one will throw shoes at you.

You will find more examples of temporary brain tumors that should make you laugh, including headlines, the brilliance of the banks and government – especially Newman and Cliff Claven – signs and other tax deductions and further thoughts by our youth. The author offers some, worthless facts, fun things to do and ends the book with a few questions that you may have thought of asking. Smile – people will wonder what you're up to.

Laughter is the best medicine and you don't need a referral.

Swiatek taught high school math for eight years and then joined the rat race of the business world for over twenty-five years, mostly as a computer software consultant. At the end of 2001, he retired and resumed his third career as a writer, which he had started part-time while teaching. In 2008, he published six of his books, more than in the last six years combined. They have received great reviews from critics, friends and family. A woman named Monica – whom he has yet to meet – offered these words on his cookbook: “I got a kick out of it. I couldn't put it down until I finished it.” We know she can be trusted because her name is Monica. Information on his books can be found at the website he created and maintains, WWW.BOBCKOOKS.COM. It has reviews, a new recipe each month, a menu suggestion, which changes from time to time, and other stuff of interest. You may want to visit regularly, but be advised, once you get there, you may never leave – another writer called it a goldmine. In the works for 2009 are books on cancer and the truth – however you find it. He was born in Buffalo and lived in a few places in the eastern United States, but currently resides in the city of his birth. His degrees are in mathematics, math education and computer science, but he refuses to do stand-up.
